Learning Support · SEN Team · Bilingual English & Korean

May 23, 2026

Dear Hiring Committee,

I am currently embedded within the Special Educational Needs (SEN) team at International Leadership of Texas — High School, where I work as a full-time Learning Support Aide reporting directly to the SENDCo. My daily work is EHCP and SEN support plan implementation, one-to-one and small group intervention, progress monitoring, and supporting students with identified learning needs across all subject areas in Years 10–13. The Learning Support Teaching Assistant role at Seoul Foreign School is, in substance, what I do now.

The students I support are diverse in their needs and backgrounds. I adapt content, pacing, and approach to individual learning profiles, administer and record assessments using district-approved management systems including Skyward and Project Education, and contribute to the progress monitoring and evaluation data that feeds into SEN reviews. I understand both the relational side of this work — building trust with students who have often experienced difficulty — and the administrative discipline it requires. I have not administered the Woodcock Johnson specifically, but I work within a formal assessment cycle and am committed to developing further assessment skills within the SFS context.

What I bring that is less common: I am fluent in English and Korean. I completed my secondary education in Seoul, at High School, and later worked as Secretary to the Principal at High School. I subsequently spent two years at Texas A&M University providing direct support — including Korean-language assistance — to international students from over fifty countries. For a school that draws its community from across the globe and is situated in Korea, that combination of language, cultural familiarity, and international student experience is not incidental. It is central to the role.

I recognize that the posting lists a bachelor's degree as a desired qualification, and I want to be straightforward: my qualifications are professional and experiential rather than degree-based. What I offer in its place is over twenty years of direct classroom practice, nearly two years embedded within a functioning SEN team at secondary level, and a demonstrable ability to support students with identified needs in a rigorous, compliant, and compassionate manner. I am actively committed to my own professional development and would welcome the opportunity to build further formal knowledge within the school context.

I want to be part of a genuinely international community, a commitment to every child's sense of belonging, and a standard of educational practice. I am available for interview at any time that suits the committee.

Yours sincerely,

Joy
