Dear Sir or Madam,

Growing up watching my mother inspire students far beyond the classroom, I developed a deep appreciation for the transformative power of education—an appreciation I am eager to bring to teaching English in Seoul. Having lived in London for the past five years as an American pursuing my undergraduate degree in Journalism at the University of Roehampton, I have cultivated a global perspective, adaptability, and a passion for cultural exchange, qualities I look forward to sharing with my students.

Though new to formal teaching, I have hands-on experience guiding young learners as a part-time tutor and nanny, where I learned patience, creativity, and how to foster engaging, supportive learning environments. My work managing a café and in freelance content writing and social media management strengthened my organization, communication, and problem-solving skills. Assets I plan to leverage to make English lessons both effective and memorable.

I have been self-studying Korean for nearly a year, which has given me insight into the challenges of learning a new language and deepened my empathy for students. Growing up around teaching, I also witnessed how educators can spark curiosity, confidence, and ambition. I aim to create a classroom where students feel encouraged to explore English, express themselves, and gain new perspectives on the world.

Creative, detail-oriented, and tenacious, I am eager to contribute to Korvia's mission and fully immerse myself in Korean culture. I would be thrilled to bring my energy, creativity, and dedication to your program.

Kind regards,
Samantha Hinds
