

Eduardo Alexander Rosadio

242 W 122nd St—New York, NY 10027
860-748-8479; ear2168@columbia.edu

Dear BRIDGE Recruitment Talent Team:

Thank you for the opportunity to express my interest in applying for the position of ESL teacher in Korea. After learning about this initiative to educating students in English and exposing them to Western cultural customs, I am very eager to join your institution. I believe that my dedication to teaching and working with New York City youth in underserved communities, combined with my love for learning languages, makes me a strong candidate to be a dynamic, adaptable ESL teacher.

I trust that my skills would be best applied to ensure high academic achievement in this position, where rigor, adaptability, and collaboration are imperative. Thanks to my experiences gained at South Bronx Classical Charter School, I have succeeded in implementing a warm-strict classroom environment that maintained a high standard of work achievement through Classical's model of the Good Readers Plan aligned to common core standards. At the same time, I also acknowledge a positively reinforcing growth mindset for my students' development. From these experiences and knowledge gained in Relay Graduate School's Master's in Teaching program, I have learned multiple avenues of differentiated instruction to accommodate for the different learning styles of my students, especially those with IEP plans and those receiving additional Special Education services (SETTS). Lastly, just as I advocate for continuous growth for my students, I also strive for the same for myself as a teacher. Data analysis meetings with my grade team, intervention planning meetings, and weekly feedback debriefs with my coaches have helped me create a solid foundation for teaching and how I envision my classroom.

I witnessed how children naturally learn through curiosity, play, and hands-on discovery in my first teaching role as a volunteer for the Pegasus Project's Harlem Summer program. There, I saw students getting excited from working together to translate Latin sentences, noticing similarities between Spanish and Latin words, and making connections between mythology we were learning to texts they read in school. Their joy in learning from an abstract field like Classics inspired me on my teaching path to provide equitable access and make ESL learning and other areas of education fun. An exploratory approach towards learning in general empowers children to discover their interests and become confident, motivated learners for life, a goal which I aim to serve in Korea well.

I am excited about working in Korea as an ESL teacher as I feel it would be a great place to make a positive impact on children's lives while also growing as an educator. I look forward to hearing from you. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Best,

Eduardo Alexander Rosadio