Profile

Passionate, motivated, and with over a year of hands-on experience in teaching English, I am eager to advance my career as an English teacher. Holding a Master's degree in Political Science and International Relations, along with a TESOL Diploma, I combine academic excellence with practical teaching skills. While my formal classroom experience may be relatively recent, I bring powerful communication abilities, a global perspective, and a deep dedication to education.

My academic and professional journey has equipped me with the skills to connect across cultures, think critically, and adapt to diverse learning environments—qualities I am excited to bring into the classroom. I am fully committed to continuous learning and growth, and I respectfully seek the opportunity to demonstrate my capability. With the right support, I am confident I can make a meaningful impact on my students' English development and grow into an effective, inspiring educator.
